What now?

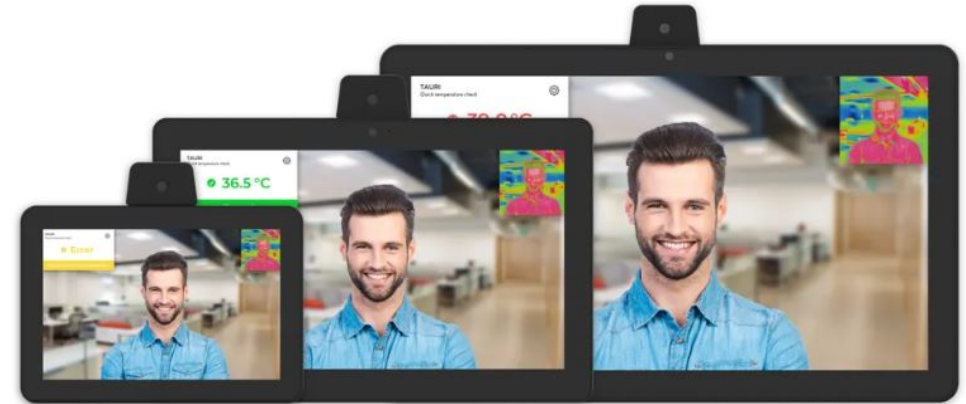

The PK-12 world is facing a massive task in re-opening schools for in-person and on-site education. This effort poses significant challenges as districts must accommodate regulatory guidelines and recommendations. Emotions & pressures could also intensify as parents begin to realize what next school year could look like. There are multiple changes that school districts will be wrestling with this summer. Simultaneously, they must be bold in imagining the next phase of education in an age of uncertainty.
